

Short Blames War Dept. For Singling Him As Scapegoat

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Major Gen. Walter C. Short contended today that the War Department in four years of silence had attempted to single him out as "the scapegoat for the disaster" at Pearl Harbor.

In a 13,000-word statement placed before the Senate-House investigating committee, the retired Hawaiian army commander said his superior officers in Washington had "passed the buck" to him until the Congressional inquiry "forced the revelation of facts."

Short asserted the War Department had "four years to admit" it should have acted before December 7, 1941, on his November 27 report that he had alerted his troops only against sabotage. But the first such "admission of responsibility," he said, came from Gen. George C. Marshall, former Chief of Staff, and Lt. Gen. L. T. Gerow, former war plans head, in the current hearings.

This was the first time the 65-year-old general has had an opportunity to testify in public. Records of his previous testimony before the Roberts commission and army inquiry boards already have been released by the committee.

Was Not Warned
In a separate opening statement today, Short said he was "sure that I would have arrived at the conclusion that Hawaii would be attacked and would have gone on an all-out alert" if he had received all the information Washington had on the situation.

Short asserted he was not permitted to hear other witnesses nor to cross-examine them in the Roberts commission investigation. He did not read the evidence taken by the commission until August, 1944, he said.

He added that after he appeared before the army Pearl Harbor board, where he did not hear or question other witnesses, he was allowed to read the "top secret" part of its testimony only when the Congressional committee began its hearing.

In his longer, main statement Short followed closely the line he had taken previously in making these contentions:

Not Kept Advised
1. He was not given the information from intercepted Japanese messages by which he said the War Department "knew definitely at 9 p. m., December 6th, that the hour had struck and that war was at hand."

2. If General Marshall felt there were security reasons why he could not be given this information, he should have directed specifically an all-out alert as he did on a false alarm in 1940.

3. The action in dispatching unarmed bombers from the mainland to Hawaii on the night of December 6, 1941, "confirmed me in my belief that an air raid was not probable."

4. The navy did not ask for any army planes from November 27 to December 6 to aid in reconnaissance and "to me this meant that they had definite information of the locations of Japanese carriers."

5. Had he been given by telephone General Marshall's December 7 message which arrived too late, he would have had four hours to prepare for the attack.

Not Treated Fairly
6. The War Department had nine days after the November 27 warning message to change the anti-sabotage alert which he notified Washington he had put in effect but did nothing.

7. He now realized that "my decision was wrong" to alert only against sabotage, but thinks his judgment at the time that sabotage was the greatest danger and "that air attack was not imminent" was the same as the general staff's.

"I do not feel that I have been treated fairly or with justice by the War Department," Short told the committee. "I was singled out as an example, as the scapegoat for the disaster. My relatively small part in the transaction was not explained to the American people until this joint Congressional committee forced the revelation of the facts."

"Passed The Buck"
Short said that while he appreciated the War Department's desire to preserve the secrecy of the source of information it got from breaking the Japanese code, "I am sure that could have been done without any attempt to deceive the public by a false pretense that my judgment had been the sole factor causing the failure of the army to fulfill its mission of defending the navy at Pearl Harbor."

"I am sure that an honest confession by the War Department general staff of their failure to anticipate the surprise raid would have been understood by the public, in the long run and even at the time. Instead, they 'passed the buck' to me and I have kept my silence until the opportunity of this public forum was presented to me."

Short said he was "more than astounded to learn of the complaint."

PROPOSE PLAN FOR SCHOOL AID TO CO. LIBRARY

The possibility that Adams county's school directors may supply books worth several thousands of dollars each year to the county public library was discussed Monday evening by the county school board.

No action was taken by the board to recommend such action to the district boards of the county, pending determination of both how the bookmobile is received and the legality of the question, but the county group appeared determined to make such a recommendation if the situation seems favorable.

Luther E. Jacobs, president of the board and a member of the Highland township board, brought the matter to the board's attention by pointing out that each year the township grants permission to each of its teachers to purchase up to $10 worth of books for use in the schools.

"Why couldn't we turn that money over to the library? We'd still have the use of the books for our children along with hundreds of other books. If every township spent the money it ordinarily expends for library books in its own schools by giving that money to the county library think of the great number of books the county library would then have that would be available for all of our youngsters. Then each school would have a chance to read all of the library books bought by all of the schools in the county."

Service Limited Now
Other directors estimated that well over $2,000 per year would be given to the library if such a plan were adopted.

No action was taken by the board, however, with the group determining to see how well the proposed bookmobile is received throughout the county. Present plans of the library call for every school to be visited once each month when the library can secure a "bookmobile" for its visits. At the present time the librarian is starting the bookmobile.

LOCAL GUARD BEATS ALERT TEST BY HOUR

The performance of the 72 officers and men of the county company of the State Guard during Sunday's mobilization was termed "excellent" today by Capt. C. Arthur Brame, commanding officer of the unit.

Within two hours after the alert began all members of the troop except four, all of whom had "excellent reasons for their absence," were present at the armory here. The men were notified by telephone all over the county starting at 12 noon and Captain Brame said today that "the cooperation of the telephone exchange operators could not have been better. Much of the success of the mobilization came from their efforts."

Beat Test By Hour
Within an hour and a half after the stand-by call at 12 noon every member except three who are without telephone service had been notified. By 2 o'clock in the afternoon all members of Troop C of the First Cavalry Squadron, Pennsylvania State Guard had gathered at the armory. At 3 p. m. the troops, with full equipment moved out in two columns. First Lt. George Dehoff, commander of the first platoon led his platoon in convoy to Littlestown, averaging 30 miles an hour on the trip. At Littlestown he halted his column for further orders.

At the same time Second Lt. Amidee Ecker, second platoon leader, led his outfit to New Oxford. Captain Brame then ordered the two platoons to meet at Hanover. The entire company returned to Gettysburg through Abbottstown.

National requirements are for the state guard units to be able to mobilize within three hours, Captain Brame pointed out. The local company beat that requirement by an hour in its test.

Driver Faces Two Counts After Crash

Charges of failure to yield the right of way at an intersection and of driving without a current inspection sticker will be laid against William T. Pope, Gettysburg R. 3, as a result of a collision Monday morning at 10 o'clock on the Chambersburg pike near Seven Stars.

The charges will be laid before Justice of the Peace William Dentrich by State Trooper Robert Deitrich, who investigated.

The accident occurred, according to Deitrich, when Pope drove his truck out onto the Chambersburg road from a side road directly in front of a car driven by Warren S. Shellenberger, York, who was proceeding west on Route 30. No one was injured. Total damage was estimated at $250.

SAYS PATIENCE IS NEEDED FOR DEMOBILIZATION

The urgent need for exercise of patience—by both civilians and soldiers alike—in the matter of demobilization was stressed by the Rev. George H. Berkheimer, Arendtsville Lutheran pastor and former army chaplain, in a talk Monday evening before the Gettysburg Lions club.

"Our great armed forces were not mobilized in a day and they cannot come home in a day," the Rev. Mr. Berkheimer, who served three years in the Pacific, declared as he expressed the opinion that a great deal of the unrest among the GIs overseas now is due to "the clamoring of people in this country for their return."

"It's a great sacrifice for the men to stay away from their homes for long periods of time but we must remember that our armies came home too soon after the last war and let the isolationist clique have sway. The same forces are at work now and if we allow ourselves to be duped again, we'll have to repeat this mess as surely as I'm standing here."

"Keep The Job Done"
Asserting that America now has the choice of keeping some of its forces overseas "to keep the job done" or facing the certainty of another war, the Rev. Mr. Berkheimer continued: "We can't stay out of world affairs so it's only common sense on our part, since we have this thing settled, is to see that the job stays done."

"It is our duty to the men overseas, to ourselves and to the thousands who will never come home. They wanted to come home as much as we did and their loved ones longed for their return. The suffer—"

Fined $10 On Code Charge

Pleading guilty before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder Monday afternoon to a charge of operating a motor vehicle too fast for road conditions, J. Frank Miller, Baltimore, was fined $10 and costs.

Miller was arrested at 3:45 p. m. Monday by Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster, following receipt of a complaint that an automobile was being driven "recklessly" on Baltimore street.

Chief Harpster said Miller's car was "all over the road" on Baltimore street, and that it endangered a group of school children at Baltimore and High streets.

Driving alongside Miller's car, Harpster ordered him to pull over to the curb, but Miller "just waved back at me, and kept on going," the chief said.

Chief Harpster followed Miller around Center Square and onto Chambersburg street, where he pulled across the street in front of Miller's car and forced him to stop. Miller was taken to Dr. Chester G. Crist, Dr. Crist pronounced the map "sober," according to the chief. He was then arraigned, paid his fine and costs and $5 for the examination by Dr. Crist.

U.S. May Seize Meat Plants; Steel Strike Affects Many

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—The White House acknowledged for the first time today that government seizures in the meat industry are under consideration.

Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, however, told a news conference that similar action in the steel industry is not yet being considered.

In reply to questions he told reporters there might be some development on meat during the day. He didn't know, he said, but it's possible.

"It's impossible to say at this time what will be done," Ross said. "The matter of seizure has been under consideration." Under further questioning he emphasized that this did "not refer to steel."

Ross made public a letter in which President Truman instructed the steel fact-finding board to continue its "study of governmental data" and "remain available for further consultation."

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (AP)—Paralysis gripped America's basic industry today as the CIO-United Steelworkers strike kept 750,000 idle for a second day—300,000 in Pennsylvania.

The biggest walkout in U. S. history closed nearly 1,300 steel-making and fabricating plants, aluminum mills and iron ore mines in 29 states. Today its effect was spread-

COMMITTEE HAS RAISED $500 FOR FREE ROADS UNIT

At a meeting of the Pennsylvania Free Roads Association committee of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce in the Chamber offices Monday evening, reports showed that $500 has been contributed thus far in the committee's effort to raise $1,500 to fight the extension of the Pennsylvania turnpike and obtain the modernization of the Lincoln highway and other existing free roads.

Representative Francis Worley, York Springs R. 1, attended the meeting and declared that "While I am your representative, I am not for toll roads that do not benefit the people of Adams county." Continuing, he said:

Continue Drive
Glenn Guise, co-chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting. Announcement was made that the drive for funds will be continued this week, and that persons not contacted and wishing to contribute should mail their checks.

"It is important to back this drive, because if we expect tourists to continue to come to Gettysburg we must have our highways modernized and kept in repair," Henry Garvin, president of the Chamber of Commerce said.

The committee will meet again next Monday evening in the Chamber of Commerce offices at 8 p. m. to receive further reports.

COL. JOHNSON TELLS CLUBMEN OF PRISON DAYS

Col. Edwin H. Johnson, Harrisburg street, a prisoner of the Japanese from the surrender of Bataan to the end of the war, outlined his experiences as a prisoner Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Rotary club.

As prisoners, he and his group had been moved a number of times, from the Philippines to Japan, from Japan to Formosa, from that island to far into the interior of Manchuria and finally to a huge war prisoner camp at Mukden, in Manchuria.

It was August 10, 1945, and the prisoners at Mukden saw a number of parachutists tumbling toward the earth some distance from their camp. They thought little of it, for the Japanese had an airport nearby and they believed it was the Japanese paratroopers practicing. Some time later that day some of the prisoners wandered into a barracks adjoining the Japanese headquarters. From the windows of the barracks they could look into the office of the Japanese colonel who commanded the camp. Soon they were out, excitedly, to tell the latest bit of news to the other prisoners.

Supplies from Russians
There were men who looked like American soldiers with the colonel, they reported. The men who were apparently Americans from their clothes and insignia were having tea with the colonel. As many prisoners as could crowded into the barracks to see the strange sight. The only conclusion they could reach was that new prisoners had been captured by the enemy—but why were they drinking tea together in an apparently friendly manner? It was a topic of conversation for the rest of the day and far into the night.

The next morning the officer prisoners were called together. The ranking American officer spoke to them: "I have the permission of the camp commandant to inform you that an armistice has been arranged between the Japanese forces on the one hand and the American and British on the other. Hostilities continue however between the Russian and the Japanese forces."

Thus the war ended after four years for Colonel Johnson. The American prisoners sat tight waiting for liberation. A few days later Russian troops spilled into Mukden and the Japanese guards were placed in jail. The Russians asked the

JOHN H. BIRELY TAKES OWN LIFE

John Henry Birely, aged about 52, Emmitsburg district, committed suicide Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Death was due to a shotgun discharge, which penetrated the left breast directly over the heart.

Birely resided alone in a small dwelling, near Four Points in the Tom's Creek vicinity. Although living in Frederick county, his post-office address was Taneytown R. 3.

He sometimes took his meals with the nearby Emory Hahn family by whom he was reported last seen alive around the noon hour. In the late afternoon, Mr. Hahn went to the Birely place and found the body lying alongside the wall of an out-building.

Dr. W. R. Cadle, Emmitsburg, was notified and he in turn communicated with the Frederick county medical examiner. Despondency could have been the only motive, it was stated by investigators.

Following examination, the official verdict of suicide was returned. Birely had been doing odd jobs of carpentry around the Emmitsburg community. It was understood he had formerly been a ship's carpenter, but was compelled to abandon this work due to ill health, eventually going to the Emmitsburg area to make his home.

Roofing applied immediately. Citizens Oil Co. Roofing Division. "If it leaks," call today, 204 or 400-W.

250 GROWERS ARE GUESTS AT MUSSELMAN'S ANNUAL FEAST

The essentials for growing a successful and paying crop of tomatoes were listed for 250 Adams county growers who attended the annual tomato growers' banquet in the cafeteria of the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville, Monday evening, by J. M. Huffington, vegetable extension specialist, State College. An appeal for the continuance of the farmers' best efforts in growing crops was made by M. T. Hartman, county farm agent, and the suggestion made that more serious thought be given again to community problems.

The dinner was served at 7 o'clock by employees of the company, the men acting as waiters and the women as cooks. The Yorktowne Trio, York, furnished instrumental music during the dinner. Corsages were presented to each of the women guests at the dinner. John A. Hauser, president of the Musselman company, opened the after-dinner program, and the invocation was given by the Rev. Roy Geigley, pastor of the Mummaburg Mennonite church. Arthur Gordon, teacher of history in the Biglerville high school, was toastmaster, and entertained the guests with a number of humorous stories.

Four selections were ably rendered by the Musselman glee club, under the direction of Charles L. Yost, "O, What a Beautiful Morning," "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," "Bless This House," and the Fred Waring arrangement of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Guests Introduced
Among the guests then introduced were Mrs. Dunmire, assistant farm agent; Dr. Fred Lewis, member of the state laboratory staff, Arendtsville; Jack Clinch, agriculture teacher at Arendtsville, and Cecil Snyder, Biglerville "ag" teacher.

Mr. Huffington declared that Adams county now raises ten times

SPAIN EQUIPPED TO HOUSE KING IF HE RETURNS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP World Traveler)

Madrid, Jan. 22.—The question of whether the Spanish monarchy shall be restored remains hot though unanswered, but your columnist team has been sleuthing about and is at least able to report that Spain is equipped to house a king—if that's the sort of government the country wants.

The royal palace was thrown open to Mrs. Mack and me and after walking for hours through a labyrinthine fairland, we are quite prepared to accept the claim that this is the world's finest establishment of its kind.

I've seen many European and Oriental palaces—been a guest in some of 'em for that matter—and can find no fault with the claim that the Madrid palace outshines them all.

Wide Discussion
Anyway, who am I to argue against the great Napoleon Bonaparte, who remarked to his brother, Joseph, on installing him in the Spanish capital as king: "You will be better housed than I am at the Tuilleries."

As to whether the pretender Don Juan ever will occupy the home of his ancestors again, it strikes me we shall be wise not to rush to any conclusion. The matter is certainly being discussed widely, but it must be recognized that no great political change can be made by waving a magic wand—especially with Europe in a highly nervous and, in many places, highly disorganized state.

If a return of the monarchy is contemplated in official quarters—and there has been no indication in this matter—we may be fairly sure that the change would be made with the greatest care and deliberation.

State Rooms Glitter
Anyway, the mountainous palace, though slightly damaged during the civil war, is in large measure still its regal self.

The private quarters of the family, to be sure, have been stripped of furniture in some cases, and haven't been kept up for display. But the great state rooms glitter with the splendor of 15 years ago, when the late King Alfonso went into exile with his family.

There is no speck of dust visible on the priceless furniture, the massive cut glass chandeliers and the paintings of masters, for faithful hands which served the old monarchy still perform the prideful tasks.

Orphanage Named In Yorker's Will

The estate of Dr. Charles P. Rice, York manufacturer and churchman, who died January 9, will ultimately go to the George W. and Agnes Hoffman orphanage at Littlestown, and to the endowment fund of Hood college, Frederick, Md., under terms of his will probated Monday in the office of Register of Wills Edward G. Ruff.

The Western National bank, York, and the testator's son, Edward J. Rice, are named executors.

The estate is valued at $173,000. After bequests as provided are fulfilled, then the rest, remainder and residue of the estate goes to the Western National bank, in trust, his wife to receive $4,000 annually from the income, or so much more as needed for her comfort.

At her death, if the son, Edward, is surviving, then the income of the trust fund is to be paid to him. At the death of the last surviving beneficiary of the trust fund the corpus of the trust fund is to be distributed, one-fourth to Hoffman orphanage and the other three-fourths to the endowment fund of Hood college.

Bankers To Discuss 'Credit Pool' Plan

The establishment of "credit pools" which permit a number of banks to handle a loan larger than allowed under capital limitations by any one of the banks will be explained Wednesday to the Adams County Bankers' association at its regular meeting in the Battlefield hotel.

Elmer Warren, president of the county bankers' association, will preside at the dinner session scheduled for 6:30 o'clock Wednesday evening.

FULL SCALE TEST OF UNO POWERS IN RUSS REQUEST

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

London, Jan. 22 (AP)—A full-scale test of the ability of the great powers to cooperate within the United Nations Organization developed today from Soviet requests that the security council investigate and take measures against the maintenance of British troops in Greece and Java.

Officials privately agreed that this move by delegates representing the Soviet Union and the Ukraine, coupled with earlier charges made by Iran against the Russians, had ended the honeymoon period of the UNO.

American delegates were playing down talk of a crisis in the world peace agency, but it was apparent the organization was confronted with some of the toughest problems it could be asked to meet. Some Americans said privately that the United States apparently was moving into a middle man position between Russia and Britain.

First Action of Kind
The complaints, filed with the security council last night, accused Britain of endangering world peace and interfering with the internal affairs of Greece and Java. They came as a complete surprise to British, Greek and Dutch delegates, as well as others.

Observers said the twin moves by the Soviet Union and Soviet Ukraine undoubtedly posed the greatest test yet faced by the United Nations Organization, which already had been handed the explosive Russian-Iranian dispute.

They also constitute the first instance of action by one member of the 11-nation security council against another member. In weighing the moves, some officials emphasized that the new peace agency's success depended largely upon unity among the major powers.

British Say 'Tit for Tat'

There was no immediate official comment from the British. One British spokesman said, however, that his first reaction was that the Russians were playing "tit for tat"—introducing complaints against the British to balance the Iranian protests against alleged Russian interference in Northern Iran.

The spokesman said emphatically that the British had nothing to do with the filing of the Iranian complaint.

Some United sources said they were not alarmed by the developments, although officials had hoped to avoid major issues while the UNO remained in its formative stage.

"After all," one American official said, "this is the kind of thing the council was created to cope with."

Athens, Jan. 22 (AP)—Premier Themistokles Sophoulis said today

"British military forces are in Greece with the full consent of the Greek government and in earnest collaboration with it in maintaining order."

This assertion by the head of the government was the first official Greek reaction to Russia's request to the United Nations Organization to give early consideration to the situation in Greece.

The Russians maintained that the presence of British troops in Greece represented interference in Greece's internal affairs.

Urges Renewal Of Steel Conferences

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (AP)—Former Gov. Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, says President Truman "should act again and call the parties back into conference promptly" to settle the steel strike.

Such action, he told a Pittsburgh audience last night, is "the only prospect of an early settlement."

The Minnesotan, recently released from active duty as a navy captain, has been mentioned as a Republican Presidential possibility. He told the meeting, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, that the nation is undergoing partial inflation because of wage increases received by workers in some industries but not in others.

"When it comes to a situation as basic as settling the level of the dollar," Stassen said, "it should be done in broad conferences in the capital of the United States rather than on the picket lines."

He advocated establishment of "labor courts of high standards, with the power and duty to settle jurisdictional disputes between unions."

SOVIET AGENCY ACCUSES U. S.

Moscow, Jan. 22 (AP)—The official Soviet news agency Tass today accused the United States military command in Southern Korea of inspiring "reactionary" protests against the Moscow conference of foreign ministers.

In a dispatch from Heijo, Korea, Tass assailed the "reactionary press" of Southern Korea for allegedly carrying on an anti-Soviet propaganda campaign and for attacking the decision of the United States, Russia and Great Britain to set up a five-year trusteeship in Korea.

The dispatch then said: "Here the behavior of the American command in Southern Korea astonishes one. It has assumed a position of inspiring reactionary demonstrations against the decisions of the Moscow conference of foreign ministers in which, as is known, the government of the United States participated."

The dispatch also attacked what it called "the counterfeited government of Kim Koo and Shin Man Ri," declaring that their activity is "directed against hampering the decisions of the Moscow conference of foreign ministers on Korea, on starting a civil war inside the country and on inflaming hostility toward the Soviet Union."

BOXING GROSS IS $13,000,000

By TED MEIER

New York, Jan. 22 (P)—As a portent of the generally anticipated boom in the sport this year, boxing grossed approximately $13,000,000 in the United States during 1945, an increase of nearly $3,000,000 over the estimated 1944 total.

An Associated Press tabulation of figures from 32 state athletic commissions showed today that $12,878,660 was paid by at least 4,622,802 fans to witness bouts throughout the country. The attendance mark in incomplete because several of the commissions listed only gross receipts.

Joe Louis, Billy Conn and other notable prewar scrappers were still in the service, but New York state retained its No. 1 ranking as new-comers Rocky Graziano, Willis Joyce and Johnny Greco developed large followings.

Garden Sets Record
New York reported aggregate receipts of $3,969,213, including a record $2,263,259 gate at Madison Square Garden. As a comparison the garden drew $1,396,467 in 1944, $1,136,228 in 1943 and $1,111,202 in 1942.

California ranked second with proceeds of $1,984,363. Pennsylvania was third with $1,200,000.

Perhaps the biggest jump over 1944, other than New York, was in the New England area where Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine and New Hampshire reported an aggregate $1,494,158. The bulk of this was in Massachusetts which ranked fourth with $987,535, nearly 50 per cent more than the $644,667 reported for 1944.

Illinois, at $612,630, and New Jersey, at $580,690, completed the first six states.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Jan. 22 (P)—That crowd of 19,749 that turned out for the Rangers-Blackhaws game Sunday wasn't an all-time hockey record, though it may have been a high mark for National league games.

Jersey Jones recalls that more than a dozen years ago the Rangers and the Atlantic City Sea Gulls played a charity exhibition in Atlantic City with admission by donations of food and clothing.

"The announced figure was between 22,000 and 23,000," says Jersey, "and at least three or four thousand people got in without being counted."

Wally Butts, Georgia's round man, has received about a dozen coaching offers from other colleges since his team put on that swell show against Tulsa in the Oil Bowl. Indications that Wally will stay at Athens (with a better salary) are seen in the fact that he turned down Oklahoma's offer of about double his present wages.

VETERANS GET BETTER BREAK FROM CONGRESS

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Jan. 22 (P)—War veterans get a better break. Congress has widened their government benefits.

The benefits involve, loans, amputees, disabled veterans, and any future bonus. The big changes are in the so-called "G.I. Bill of Rights."

Here are the main ones:

1. Amputees—The Veterans Administration (VA) had no authority under the old law to pay a veteran's travel expenses when through difficulty with his artificial limb—he had to go to a veteran's center for a new limb or more training with the one he had.

As soon as the bill becomes law VA can pay the travel expenses.

2. Education—To get schooling at government expense, a veteran had to start it within two years after his discharge from the service or two years after the war's official end, whichever was later.

Now he can wait four years to start. He had to finish schooling within seven years of the war's end. Now it's nine.

3. Education—To get schooling at government expense, any veteran who entered the service after he was 25 had to prove his education had been interrupted by military service.

This is no longer necessary. Any one can get as much education as he is entitled to—according to his length of service. The limit is four years.

4. Pay Shorter Courses—VA pays up to $500 a year for a veteran's education. It used to do it this way: It figured a year's school term at nine months. It broke down the payments to so much a month.

If a veteran wanted an intensive course which lasted only two months but cost $500, the VA paid only what it figured that two months' share of nine months was.

Now VA will pay up to $500 for a short intensive course even if—although this would be a rare case—it was for only one week.

5. There had been no provision for government pay for correspondence courses except extension courses at regular universities. Now the government will pay for correspondence courses, within certain limits.

A veteran taking this gets no living allowances, as he would if he were at school.

6. Pay at school—Subsistence pay (money for living expenses) for a veteran going to school was $50 a month, if single; $75 if married. Now it's $65, if single; $90, if married.

7. Disabled—Vocational and rehabilitation training for service-disabled veterans had to be completed within six years of war's end. Now it is nine. The limit on such a course of training was four years. Now it can run longer, depending on VA's decision.

Living allowance for disabled veterans taking this training was at least $92.50 (now $105) for a single man. It was $103.50 (now $115) for a married man.

For each dependent parent the veteran, married or single, received an additional $11.50 (now $15). For each dependent child the married veteran received $5.75 monthly. Now he gets $10 for the first child, $7 for each additional child.

8. Loans—The VA guarantees loans to veterans by banks, individuals or accredited lending agencies. The guarantee in all cases used to be 50 per cent up to a total guarantee of $2,000.

It's still only up to $2,000 on all business loans, but for loans on real estate—like homes or farms—the guarantee under the new laws is up to $4,000. Which means? If a veteran wanted to buy an $8,000 house, the VA would guaranty $4,000 of the loan.

And—now farm loans don't have to be repaid in full for 40 years, home loans for 25. Previously both had to be repaid in 20 years.

9. Bonus—The old law said any benefits received by the veteran in the form of money—like unemployment pay or while going to school—would be deducted from any future bonus he might receive. This has been wiped out.

Victim Of Gas Poisoning Dies

Altoona, Pa., Jan. 22 (P)—Miss Rita Crook, 19, of Cresson, Cambria county, died today in Mercy hospital, a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning and exposure, and her 25-year-old fiancé, Clyde Eckenrode, remained in "a very critical condition."

The couple were found unconscious Sunday morning in an automobile on a Cresson street.

Dr. Daniel M. Replogle, Blair county coroner, said the couple apparently were overcome by gas fumes while sitting in the car. When the small amount of gas in the car's tank gave out, they began to freeze, and probably lay in the car several hours before they were found, he said.

The coroner said a preliminary examination showed Miss Crook's death due to exposure. She never regained consciousness.

Eckenrode also remained unconscious at the hospital.

Mistook Gasoline For Water, Fatally Burned

Fairchance, Pa., Jan. 22 (P)—A bucketful of gasoline which 12-year-old Daniel Smiley's brother mistakenly tossed over him to extinguish a fire Sunday created a blaze that burned the lad fatally. Deputy Coroner R. L. Sharp reported.

Daniel's brother, Jackie, 10, saw the older boy's clothing catch fire, got a bucket that he thought contained water and emptied the contents over him, Sharp said. Fire immediately enveloped Daniel and spread to furnishings in the office of a garage, where the boys were playing.

A second-floor apartment occupied by the Smiley family, also was damaged.

SENATOR BILBO READY TO TALK 30 DAYS OR SO

Washington, Jan. 22 (P)—The Southern filibuster against the Fair Employment Practice bill became official today—Senator Bilbo (D-Miss.) was detected clearing his throat.

Whispering a muffled carefully around his fabulous sound-box, Bilbo submitted to an interview.

"Why, yes," he said, "it so happens that I do intend to speak, 30 days or so."

"But I am only one of many. We have about 25 senators on our variety team, all of them primed to talk."

If the opposition wants to run 24-hours a day, we are absolutely 100 per cent ready.

Touched Off by FEPC

"We have enough speakers so we can operate in shifts."

His reference was to a plan proposed by Senators Chavez (D-NM), and Morse (R-ORE.), who favor the anti-discrimination bill. They want to hold the senate in continuous session in the hope of forcing a vote.

Riffing merrily through a sheaf of reference notes, Pearl River county's free-style talking champ disclosed that he has finished the blue-prints for his opening remarks.

"The first part of my speech," Bilbo confided, "will be devoted exclusively to the virtues and accomplishments of filibustering from 1789 to the present time."

The bill that touched off the filibuster is a measure to create a permanent FEPC to replace the wartime agency charged with guarding against job discrimination.

HEREDITY

'Tis said in children all can see
What once their parents used to be.
Mixed in, for all the world to view,
With what their grandfolds used to do.

Some sages make the statement flat,
Fixed traits lie further back than that.

The great, great kinkfolk reappear
In many a mannerism queer.

I think we cannot truly chart
The promptings of the human heart.
But shapers one and all must be
In what is called heredity.

If years long after I am gone
Some trait of mine shall still live on.
God grant no child shall ever be
Less fit for life because of me.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
THE GROWTH OF A TREE

Lover of trees as I am, it never occurred to me that the entire life of the tree is dependent upon outside forces for its growth. Its roots depend upon good soil, and deeper and deeper these roots work their way into the earth, searching for new substance.

When the tree has taken able rootage, it then seeks the air, the sunlight, the rain, and the warm winds. These are its meals—upon which it must depend for long life and a healthy one. Then it keeps on growing, bigger and stronger each day. But this is the significant thing about the growth of a tree — it doesn't keep this growth to itself.

To the bird this tree gives nestage, and later hears its daily calls, and those of its young. It protects the land upon which it stands and grows. It shelters and cools the stock that seek its shade. It joins in song with the wind and spreads its beauty to the landscape. It keeps taking for its growth, but keeps giving back of all that it is and has.

Likewise, we humans grow. Our rootage is in people's hearts, in the things that we say and write and do. We take from everything that our eyes survey. Our very minds are sponges that absorb ideas, thoughts, and the good acts of others. We grow from the very breath of others.

The tree has its contest for life and long years, the same as we humans do. But it silently faces its foes, its storms, and its hardships without a whimper. It never ceases its growth. Towering higher and higher, day by day and year by year, it keeps reaching higher and spreading its foliaged arms wider and wider.

I am fascinated by the banyan tree, which has overhanging branches that reach into the earth and take rootage, the same as its parent roots, as though to help out the family! Thus is its beauty enhanced and its growth multiplied. Why can't we do that? Why can't we keep re-enforcing our growth by added rootage into the world?

Every day is a new year—a melting in with other years. Life is progression. The growth of a tree is the growth and health of its inner soul, the same as in man's. Injure that and it dies, perhaps only temporarily, but man's lives on!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "General Patton."

In connection with the communication from President McCurdy, of the Water Company, Mr. McCurdy denies emphatically the assertion made at a recent meeting of the Town Council that every time there is a fire there is delay until the water is turned on. The pressure is never off; but this baseless assertion has been repeated so often that many citizens have been led to believe its truthfulness. The present managers of the Water Company are progressive and liberal, and have given the town the best possible service under the conditions. During the terrible drought which has prevailed for so much of the time during the past year, the use of water was never restricted in Gettysburg. Instead of this continual attack on one of the most useful and beneficial companies of the town, the citizens should show their appreciation of what has been done, and encourage the managers to make still further improvements to what is now one of the very best plants in the state.

A Savage Bull: On Friday morning Pierce Plank brought to town a bull weighing fourteen to fifteen hundred pounds tied with a heavy log chain to the rear of his two horse wagon. He intended to sell the animal to Weidandt & Homan. All went well until Baltimore and High streets were reached. There the bull became frightened by the noise made by school children and jumped, not being tied short, on to the wagon with his front feet. The coupling pole broke and the infuriated animal tossed the rear half about in a lively way. The shutters were knocked off Chas. Clunk's shop and the wheels were smashed to pieces. He ran down West High street to E. A. Weaver's home, where he was lassoed and securely tied to a tree. We fear the damage done will nearly amount to the price paid for him by the Butchers.

Personal Mention: The friends of Mrs. J. M. Rowe remembered her on the 12th inst. by a very enjoyable surprise birthday party at the home of her son, W. F. Rowe, on Carlisle street. Guests were present from New Oxford, Fairfield and Baltimore.

PRICE CONTROL AND HIGH TAXES DEEMED LIKELY

By JACK BELL

Washington, Jan. 22 (A)—Congress seemed inclined today to support some extension of price controls and to keep taxes at a high level. But the remainder of President Truman's domestic legislative program provoked as much criticism as praise.

Republicans sparked the criticism, with Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) observing to reporters that the President's 30,000-word recounting of administration aims ought to be labeled "a message on the sorry state of the union."

On the other hand Senator Mead (D., N. Y.) commented that the President's economic proposals are "sound and necessary."

Not all comment, however, followed party lines.

Among 25 requests in his state of the union message yesterday, Mr. Truman asked for a full year's extension of price controls. The reaction was mixed on this score, but most legislators who were asked about it said they thought some curbs must be retained to prevent runaway inflation.

For "Sane" Program
Senator Ball (R., Minn.) suggested that a "sane" program be adopted under which price increases of possibly five per cent would be allowed to make up for some of the wage raises that have been granted.

"We'd better do that rather than sit on the lid so tight that we have a blowup," Ball asserted.

Congressional fiscal experts appeared pretty well agreed that Mr. Truman's opposition would prevent any substantial tax cuts this year.

Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance committee said he figures that even if reconversion and production go ahead without too much interruption from strikes, revenues still may fall $5,000,000,000 short of meeting a $35,000,000,000 outlay.

Noting that Mr. Truman forecast a $7,000,000,000 drop in the national debt during the next 18 months, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) announced plans to lower the legal debt ceiling from $300,000,000,000 to $275,000,000,000. The debt now stands at $278,000,000,000.

Not Far Enough
There were many lawmakers who thought Mr. Truman's recommendations for the establishment of fact-finding boards fall short of a solution for current labor disputes.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.) said he believes the time has arrived for Congress to pass more drastic labor legislation.

Senator Morse (R., Ore.) generally endorsed the goals set forth by Mr. Truman, but he said "this fact-finding proposal will not solve labor disputes." Morse proposed instead voluntary settlements, adding: "I think both industry and labor should practice their pratings about freedom of economic action by agreeing to settle all major disputes by voluntary arbitration."

Congress Asked To Extend Price Control Act A Year

Washington, Jan. 22 (A)—President Truman asked congress Monday to act on a revised 2-topic legislative program, all of which he had recommended on various dates since last September.

In addition, he recommended these additional measures:

1. Extension of the Price Control Act for one year from next June 30.
2. Extension of the Second War Powers Act, including priority and inventory controls, beyond June 30, presumably another six months.
3. Continuation of good subsidies beyond June 30 with the proviso that they stop if the cost of living declines below present levels.
4. Legislation creating a permanent housing agency.

Here are the 21 measures Mr. Truman listed by numbers:

1. A law to give fact-finding boards greater powers in labor disputes.
2. A so-called "full employment" bill such as that passed by Senate.
3. Supplementing unemployment insurance benefits.
4. A permanent fair employment practice committee.
5. Raising the statutory minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents an hour now, to 70 cents after one year, and to 75 cents after two years.
6. A scientific research agency.
7. A health and prepaid medical care program.
8. Universal military training.
9. Increased federal salaries.
10. Presidential succession legislation.
11. Unification of the armed services.
12. A law to cover domestic use and control of atomic energy.
13. Retention of federal control over the U. S. Employment Service at least until June 30, 1947.
14. Increased unemployment allowance for veterans.
15. Social Security coverage for veterans for their term of military service.
16. Extension of crop insurance.
17. Authority to sell surplus merchant ships and to charter vessels both here and abroad.
18. Stock-piling of strategic materials.
19. Federal airport legislation.
20. Repeal of the Johnson Act, barring private loans to nations in default on their World War 1 debts to U. S.
21. Development of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway.

Veterans Replace Women As Clerks

Harrisburg, Jan. 22 (A)—Less than one-fourth of the women hired by the State Liquor Control Board as state store clerks during the war still had the jobs today.

Chairman Frederick T. Gelder said the women are being displaced as fast as veterans return to jobs they held before induction into the armed forces, approximately 400 women were employed at the peak.

"It isn't that we are discharging all women, but women were probably the last to come on as temporary employees during the war," Gelder explained.

The board had 1,280 employees in the armed services of which 800 were store managers or clerks. Many of these already have resumed their old posts.

5,200 Glassworkers Returning To Jobs

Pittsburgh, Jan. 21 (A)—End of a strike that had tied up operations at Pittsburgh Plate and Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass plants in six states since October paved the way for the return of some 5,200 Pittsburgh district glassworkers to the jobs Monday.

Settlement of the dispute, which involved a total of 15,000 workers, was announced in Columbus, Ohio, Saturday night, with production and maintenance workers getting an hourly wage boost of 10.7 cents.

The union, the CIO-Federation of Glass, Ceramic and Silica Glass Workers, had asked a flat increase of 25 cents an hour.

A joint statement issued by Joseph Froesch, union president, and L. G. Bryan, vice president of Libbey-Owens-Ford, said the plants were to reopen Monday.

An injunction suit brought by the company against the union, intended to limit the picketing, was called yesterday morning but continued until today to permit the union-company effort at an out-of-court settlement.

Westinghouse has asked the court to restrain interference with the operation of its business or with the company's agents and employees entering or leaving company property.

Local 610 of the union announced that about 500 war veterans would go to Harrisburg Thursday to ask Governor Martin for a special session of Legislature to approve unemployment pay for veterans employed in strikebound plants. The veterans also will seek adequate housing and a state veterans' bonus.

Legend Of Only Icicle Ever Seen In Balmy Hongkong

By HAL BOYLE

Hongkong, Jan. 22 (A)—Leaves from a correspondent's notebook:
Only one icicle has been recorded in Hongkong's long and balmy history—and it was seen only by one man.

Legend has it that the icicle was found many years ago by a poor rickshaw coolie. He saw it hanging from a water pipe outside a hotel at the top of this colony's famous funicular railway. Having spent all his life in Hongkong's equable climate, the ignorant coolie thought he had come across some strange new gem—it glittered so brightly in the sunshine.

Tearing this foot-long treasure from the water pipe, he began running madly down the road to show his prize to the townspeople at the bottom of the hill.

Lost His "Diamond"
Unfortunately, his strange cold "diamond" began to melt. The faster he ran the faster it melted in his warm hands.

Just as he reached the bottom of the hill the last of the icicle vanished. When the rickshaw coolie told his friends of his wonderful adventure and showed his dripping hands they laughed at him and called him dreamy fool. They thought he had gone punchy from pulling his rickshaw uphill.

And so, according to British colony weather boosters, perished the only icicle nature ever formed in sunny Hongkong.

The Japs, who have adopted so many western culture patterns, are going in now for American slogans. I remember one sign printed in a Tokyo newspaper office that read: "A conference is a group of people who individually can do nothing and collectively decide that nothing can be done. Wise decision and quick action."

Capt. Edward Lesage, veteran little British navy commander, thinks the story of the disgruntled Aussie trooper in New Guinea is the best anecdote of the Pacific war.

Sweating out a Japanese bombardment in a jungle mudpuddle, the Aussie complained:

"Look at me hat—hanging over me ears it's that large. Look at me uniform—big enough to wrap twice around. Look at me boys—mud squishing up through them. Look at me rifle—mud all over it. And inspection coming up in ten minutes."

Just then a Japanese shell landed in his mudpuddle and blew him up among the clouds. But his heavenly station didn't change his disposition.

"Look at me halo," he mourned in disgust. "It hangs on me ears. Look at me white nightgown—big enough to go around me six times. Look at me sandals—with clouds squishing up through me toes. Look at me harp—four strings broke. And me with inspection coming up in ten more minutes."

U. S. rents have advanced 3 per cent since May, 1943.

During 1944, 72 new U. S. areas were brought under rent control.

IN MEMORIAM
In sad but loving remembrance of my dear mother, Jennie Myers Tawney, who departed this life 22 years ago, January 25th, and my dear father, who was called home 6 years ago today, January 22, 1940.

For them the strife is ended
For them the crown is won
And glad in the joy of His presence
They heard His blessed "Well done."

For He knows best, what e'er may come,
He guides the way that leads us home.
Then let us say "Thy will be done"
But leave us not, dear Lord, alone.

There is a promise of a greater joy
Than earth could have in store,
For God has planned a richer life
Beyond the unseen shore.
By their daughter,
Mrs. Raymond MacNeil.

Lewars, the county Red Cross chairman, the certificates will go to those who since 1941 have given voluntarily of their time and efforts to aid the Red Cross. The workers include all those who helped in drives, did sewing and other work for the Red Cross.

Following the business session at which officers for the coming year will be named and by-laws adopted, a social period will be held with refreshments to be served by members of the Nurses' Aaide and Canteen Corps in uniform.

The session will mark the first time in more than a decade that Mrs. E. S. Lewars has not been returned unanimously to the office of chairman. Mrs. Lewars resigned the post recently.

She was as excited and nervous as a girl on her first date next morning when she was informed that he was waiting for her in the lobby.

She would have known him even if the desk clerk hadn't pointed out the man who had called for her. And Burk, too, seemed to know that this lovely woman was Edith's mother.

Laura smiled and held out her hand. "Hello, Burk!"

"Shall we find a quiet place where we can talk?"

"Yes," he answered. "I have a spot all picked out just over there."

"Fine."

Laura looked at this man whom her daughter loved and felt proud that Edith had made such a choice. He was as brown as a berry, he looked hardened and seasoned by outdoor labor. You could detect integrity and strength of character in the set of his chin and jaw. Unbreakable and unbendable were the words that came to her. "But too young to have learned much tolerance yet," she judged.

She said sincerely, "First let me offer you my sympathy. Edith has told me that your sister was a very lovely person."

She saw his eyes fall and a line of pain etched itself about his mouth. He said, "Thank you!" in an almost inaudible voice. Then the full force of the gaze was upon her again. "I've got to know! Did Edith send you?"

Laura shook her head. "No, I came to find out something for myself."

"I see!" Somehow she sensed that he was disappointed. "What do you want to find out?"

She was silent for a long time, studying him. She had never felt so ill at ease, so unsure of herself. She realized that she would simply have to take her courage in both hands and ask the questions she had come to ask.

She began to speak very slowly. "Edith's happiness means more to me than my very life, Burk. Sometimes people fail, because of pride, or perhaps because of fear of meddling—to say the few words that might bring happiness to those they love." She leaned forward in her chair. "I've got to know how you feel about Edith!"

He sat very still and Laura watched his face. She saw the changing expressions that swept across his features. Eagerness, longing—then resignation and despair.

"I've done the very best I can to put her out of my life, Mrs. Collins, but—" she noted that there was a ring of moisture around his eyes and her heart went out to him in pity. "But it's no use, I love her with my whole heart and am the most miserable wretch on earth without her!"

She took a deep breath, realizing that it was the first good one she'd had since meeting him. "Then perhaps you'd be interested to know that I was shocked at the change I saw in her. I knew at once that there was more than grief at your sister's death, or disappointment in her father, troubling her. I found out that she loves you in the same way and that she's miserable, too!"

He did not answer. Laura found herself growing nervous again. Was he going to allow his stubbornness to keep them apart after all? She put her hand on his arm. "If you really love her, Burk, won't you give her a chance to prove that even though she is Whit Lacey's daughter, she is a person in her own right, and that she is steady and dependable and trustworthy?"

Suddenly he was smiling and she was amazed at the change it made in his appearance. "Like you!" Burk said, and now there was excitement in his voice, eagerness in his eyes. "I see now—seeing you explains everything I didn't understand about Edith!"

Enchanted Journey

Chapter 29

Three days later Laura came into Edith's room while she was still sleeping and shook her gently.

"Wake-up, darling! I'm on my way to an assignment that will take me out of town overnight. You'll take good care of Chris for me, won't you?"

Edith blinked, then sat up in bed. She saw that her mother was wearing a smart black traveling costume and carried a small bag.

"This is rather sudden, isn't it?" "Yes, but you know how I do things, Edith. Come—awake! You'll have to look after things, you know."

She's trying to make me feel that I'm important, Edith mused, when she knows very well Dabney can manage without anyone's help! Aloud she said, "Don't worry. We'll get along. But hurry back."

"I'll get back for dinner tomorrow. Goodbye, chicken!"

Laura leaned over the bed and kissed her. "Oh, I forgot. Jedie Lee called and said for you to call her later. She thought you two might have luncheon together and see a movie this afternoon."

"Thanks, mother. Goodbye, darling!"

As Laura's cab sped toward the airport her thoughts were speeding, too. "I had to tell her that small lie about an assignment. I was mortally afraid that she would ask me where I'm going! If I'd said Louisville she'd have asked questions. But she wasn't even interested enough to ask—or perhaps just too absorbed in her own thoughts. Oh, dear, I hope I'd doing the right thing!"

Chris hadn't been any too encouraging about this trip. He was still all for letting Edith and Burk Angus work out their own future.

"But how can they with all these miles between them?" Laura argued. "I've just got to do what I can!"

And so it was with some trepidation that she sent the telegram to Laura. "Meet me in Louisville, Brown Hotel, 10 a. m. Tuesday morning if convenient. Laura Lacey Collins."

She felt better when she had Burk's reply. "See you Tuesday as requested. Burk Angus."

And now she was on her way to Louisville.

She was as excited and nervous as a girl on her first date next morning when she was informed that he was waiting for her in the lobby.

She would have known him even if the desk clerk hadn't pointed out the man who had called for her. And Burk, too, seemed to know that this lovely woman was Edith's mother.

WASHINGTON IS IN MIDST OF BRIDGE DEBATE

By J. FRANK TRAGLE
Washington, Jan. 22 (P)—A nice thing about Washington is that you always can find an argument to suit your mood.

If you're tired of discussing what's to be done with the atomic bomb, you can find someone to join you in whipping up a froth over bridges. What everybody's het up about is whether one bridge or two bridges should replace the present 14th St. span across the Potomac river.

All agree that the present span, Highway Bridge, is inadequate and if, something isn't done pretty soon, will be invisible.

Opened in February, 1906, Highway Bridge is suffering from a severe case of the shakes. The more than 40,000 vehicles which pass over it daily—reaching a peak of 5,000 an hour—aren't helping it recover.

The span is a north-south link on heavily traveled U. S. 1. It replaced Long Bridge, which was opened by President Jackson in 1835. Preceding Long Bridge was old Long Bridge, opened in 1809.

Experts' Forecast
Traffic experts have estimated that by 1960 there will be 80,000 vehicles crossing the Potomac at 14th St. every day, reaching a peak of 10,000 an hour. How best to get all that traffic across the river is the problem which has led to what Washington now calls the "Battle of the Bridges."

One group says two one-way bridges of four lanes each would do the trick. Another group favors one six-lane span at 14th St., with another to be built down the river at Alexandria when needed.

Opponents of the two-bridge plan contend that bottle-necks would develop at four lanes of one-way traffic were dumped into Washington simultaneously, and that approaches to the second bridge, slightly down-stream from the present 14th St. span, would mar the beauty of the Jefferson Memorial.

The two-bridge boys say one six-lane bridge would be inadequate and that traffic on two one-way bridges could be handled comfortably. They point to an opinion in the Fine Arts Commission that the Jefferson Memorial and surroundings would remain as beautiful as ever.

Advocate 2 Bridges
The chief two-bridge proponents are the District of Columbia commissioners and the Public Roads Administration. On the other side are the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the National Park Service.

The two-bridges are in the lead. Legislation to erect two spans at a total cost of $7 million has been introduced in Congress.

The one-bridgers have not given up. On their side is Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who is chairman of the National Park Service. "Curmudgeon" Harold has fought the two-bridge proposal from the start—and Harold hasn't lost many Washington battles.

COL. JOHNSON

Americans for a list of what they needed, and when the list came provided all the materials for which the Americans asked.

Tells of Bataan
"The Russians could not do enough for us," the colonel declared. Then American planes came in with food, clothing, radios, cigars, cigarettes, athletic equipment, "anything you could think of. With that we were getting from the Russians, who seemed to be trying to outdo themselves in providing for us, and with what we got from General Wedemeyer's supply forces by plane we soon had so much we didn't know what to do with it."

Thus ended four lean and hungry years during which the prisoners had seldom received enough food, frequently had to suffer humiliations and embarrassments, never received any mail.

Colonel Johnson told of going to the Philippines to become commanding officer of a Philippine army regiment, of how the Japanese attacked before the Philippines were mobilized and of the long battle on Bataan which finally ended when the American troops, without food, ill and exhausted had to surrender.

20-Years for Dr. Saby
Then began the long march, after which began a seemingly endless period of imprisonment. At the end of the prison term, when Colonel Johnson was taken aboard the hospital ship "Mercy" for return the first person he met was an army nurse whom he had last seen on Bataan, and who had escaped from there but continued service in the army until the end. She was from Lancaster.

Of the fighting on Bataan, Colonel Johnson said: "We had to make a sacrifice hit so that someone could advance to second base. If we had not put up the fight then Australia would have been invaded and we would have perhaps lost that great base. Our only regret was that we had not have held out longer."

Dr. Rasmus S. Saby was presented with a pin marking 20 years of perfect attendance at the local Rotary meetings. Charles Elcholtz made the presentation. Dr. Chester Gitt presided at the meeting in the absence of the president. About 50 attended.

RECORD ENROLLMENT
Harrisburg, Jan. 22 (P)—With 60,000 enrolled, the membership of the Pennsylvania American Legion auxiliary today stood at an all-time high. D. Ruth Miller Steese, of Mifflinburg, auxiliary president, announced the figure at a conference of presidents and secretaries of the auxiliary in Indianapolis, Ind.

BURNS PROVE FATAL
Philadelphia, Jan. 22 (P)—Miss Mary Hurley, about 70, died in Delaware County hospital today from burns suffered on last Tuesday when her hair caught fire as she was drying it.

Soldier Freed From 25 Year Sentence

Lewisburg, Pa., Jan. 22 (P)—Donald Hicks, 25, Kingston, N. Y., soldier sentenced to 25 years in prison on a charge of assault while serving in the U. S. Army in England, was freed from the Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary.

Warden William Hiatt said that Hicks was released from the prison after military authorities commuted the unexpired prison term and ordered the soldier to report to the army's Indiantown Gap military post.

Hicks was ordered freed by U. S. Circuit Court Judge John Biggs, Jr., who ruled he was convicted illegally at a court martial trial on a charge of attacking a woman at Corby, England, in 1943. He was a private at the time.

Judge Biggs handed down the decision in a habeas corpus action filed by Hicks. He held the soldier was not permitted at the trial to cross examine witnesses and that some evidence introduced at the trial was not admissible.

WOMEN MAKING GOOD PICKETS

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (P)—Rosie the Riveter and Winnie the Welder have become Patty the Picket and Carrie the Cook for the duration—of the steel strike.

They walked out of the mills right beside the male members of the CIO-United Steelworkers. But while some of the ladies trudged through the snow and slush before the gates others have been designated for duty in the temporary coffee-and-soup shelters set up by union locals.

"We're the CIO, we ain't no brutes," said Gilbert Ivers, secretary of Local 1736. "These girls who registered here for picket duty were willing to do anything for the union but you can't let a little girl get pneumonia. Not while there are able-bodied men around."

Given Choice
His local gave lady steel workers a choice of lading out refreshments for more warmly-clad pickets or being excused, temporarily, from strike duty.

Not all accepted the easier roles. Mary Dolson, who works at the Oliver Iron and Steel company, insisted on marching her four-hour stint despite the fact she hadn't worn either boots or galoshes. At the finish she took time out to warm her chilled toes—then went shopping.

Another lady picket showed up well prepared for the rigors of winter on the strikers' line. She wore a wool jacket, parka and boots—and from beneath her heavy slacks peeped unmistakable evidence of her ex-GI husband's winter woollies.

"There's just no question about it," commented Ivers. "These girls have what it takes."

service by using her own car, but because of the small space available in a private car the service is limited.

Zeal E. Peters was named to represent the board at the county Surplus Property board organization meeting Thursday at the Gettysburg high school auditorium. Mr. Peters was also named delegate from the county board to the Legislative Council meeting and the sectional meeting of county board members to be held at Harrisburg February 6.

New Directory Planned
The questionnaire from the state school commission asking opinions on the tenure act was discussed but the county board decided not to fill in the questionnaire because all district boards have already done so "and for us to do it again would be only duplication."

Mr. Jacobs was appointed as delegate to the County Welfare Council being organized at the present time. An invitation to attend a meeting of the Cooperative Commission on Teachers' Education in Pennsylvania was read.

Dr. Robert A. Bream, assistant county superintendent of schools, outlined plans for the new county school directory. Among new features of the directory will be a "Federal Charter for Rural Children," a list of benefits children should receive from schools, the story of the county library, an outline of the new pay basis set up by the state and several charts showing how the new schedule compares with the present reimbursement rate, and a history of Adams county.

FARMERS TOLD ECONOMY FACES GRAVE THREAT

Harrisburg, Jan. 22 (P)—Farmers gathering for the 30th annual state Farm Show were told today "the fight between industry and organized labor can wreck our national economy."

The statement was made by P. C. Turner, of Baltimore, president of the Food Producers Council, in a talk prepared for the opening session of the Pennsylvania State Horticultural Association, one of 27 farm organizations meeting this week.

The horticulturists and nearly a dozen other farm groups met during the day even though the official opening of the three-day agricultural event comes tonight with speeches by Governor Martin and Dean William I. Myers, New York College of Agriculture.

Anderson To Speak
Coincidentally, Clinton P. Anderson, U. S. Secretary of Agriculture, will speak at a dinner to honor Dr. George Washington Carver, Negro agricultural scientist, as the climax of a U. S. Department of Agriculture conference on crop goals for 1946.

Turner told the Horticultural Association the Food Producers Council was organized by farm groups in eight states to fight what he termed "practices by some labor leaders in forcing truck drivers to join unions."

He said the council is attempting to obtain federal legislation to outlaw the practices "as they pertain to farm trucks."

E. A. Meyer, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, said in another prepared talk postwar outlook for Pennsylvania fruits faces increasing competition from other fruits, especially citrus.

Seller's Market
"We are still in a seller's market with supplies short of demand" Meyer stated. "We have another six months or a year to put into effect plans for the competitive postwar market. Pennsylvania growers can meet this competition, but they can't get started too soon on a program for improving postwar production and marketing."

Pennsylvania swine breeders were told by Dr. Kenneth Hood, Pennsylvania State college extension specialist, that "hog prices probably will not average as high in 1946 as in 1945."

Termination of packer subsidies, he said in a prepared talk, may result in hog prices going to 10 to 12 per cent lower in the last half of the year.

ROYALISTS DEFY NEW ULTIMATUM

Athens, Jan. 22 (P)—A strong force of well armed monarchists, barricaded with 150 hostages in a mountain village 100 miles southwest of Athens, was reported today to have defied the government to carry out the terms of a "surrender or face attack" ultimatum which becomes effective at 4 p. m. (9 a. m. EST).

The government said the monarchists, reported to number 2,200 men, had killed 14 hostages in answer to the ultimatum.

As the 4 p. m. deadline approached, government reinforcements were moving into nearby Kalamai (Kalamata), Peloponnesus port city, where the same group of royalists battled police and seized the civilian hostages in bloody fighting Sunday and yesterday.

Strike Threatened
The political situation was complicated by an announcement by the KKE, political bureau of the left wing party, urging the people to proclaim a general strike and take up arms. The statement also accused the British of arming right wing elements and thus causing "Monarcho-Fascist terrorism in Greece."

Order finally was restored in Kalamai after the port had been placed under martial law and the Greek destroyer Crete had opened fire on the Monarchists.

Government estimates originally placed the number of hostages seized at 200, and said that eight had been executed. A later government announcement said 150 hostages were being held and that 14 had been killed.

University Student Held In Kidnaping

Toledo, O., Jan. 22 (P)—Capt. Ralph Murphy of the Toledo homicide squad reported today that a 21-year-old Chicagoan had been taken into custody here and would be returned to Chicago for questioning in the Degnan kidnaping case.

Murphy identified the man as a Northwestern university student. He said no charges had been filed against the man.

Does The Atom Bomb Explain Bible Miracles?

According to Edwin J. Dingle, world-renowned geographer, honored by leading geographical societies, the power of the atom as disclosed in the atom bomb, is small compared with little known and seldom used powers of the human brain. He maintains that man, instead of being limited by an average man power mind, has within him the mind power of a thousand men or more, as well as the energy power of the universe, which can be used in his daily affairs.

According to him, this sleeping giant of mind-power, when awakened, can make man capable of surprising accomplishments. It is as amazing as the atom bomb is compared with former sources of energy. Many thousands of people throughout the world have already tried his methods. Many report improvement in power of mind, achievement of brilliant business and professional success. Others report improvement in health, increased strength, courage, poise or energy, or a more magnetic personality.

He tells how he found these strange methods in far off and mysterious Tibet, often called the land of miracles by the few travelers permitted to visit it. Here, he discloses, he learned rare wisdom and long hidden practices, closely guarded for three thousand years by the sages, which enabled many to perform amazing feats. These immense powers, he maintains, are latent in all of us, and methods for using them are now simplified so that they can be used by almost any person with ordinary intelligence.

As part of a great movement to make his methods available to more people, a 9,000-word treatise is offered absolutely free for the time being. It reveals many startling results. Readers of this announcement can get their free copy by sending a post card or letter to the Institute of Mentalphysics, 213 S. Hobart Blvd. Dept. W-435, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly, because this offer may be withdrawn at any time.
